Swedish National Data Service (SND) is a research infrastructure that promotes increased open access to research data.

Together with a network of Swedish universities and research institutes SND supports researchers in making data available for reuse.

The research data lifecycle

SND helps researchers to reuse research data. In our research data catalogue thousands of datasets are made accessible.

SND makes it easier to share research data and contributes to a system of open science that benefits new research and a knowledge intensive society.

SND helps researchers to preserve research data from all disciplines. Our tools and services make data accessible in a long-term perspective.

SND offers tools, services and support to facilitate data management during the entire research process.

SND helps researchers to plan and document research. This creates more useful research data – today and in the future.

SND is funded by the Swedish Research Council and Swedish universities.
